THE LOCAL PENSION BILL. Mr. Stubbs's bill, authorizing the counon a special levy of 4 cents, to be used lieve disabled Confederate soldiers, and, indeed, has stated that, while no one is more heartly in favor of retrenchment and reform than he, yet rather than see any of these old veterans suffer he would vote for an increase in the taxation, the revenues thus derived to be appropriated to them. He moved that the bill be recommitted, in order that this burden shall fall equally upon the entire State, instead of upon the shall fall equally upon the entire State, instead of upon the various counties, some of which have very few old soldiers, while others have quite a number. Mr. Featherston also thinks that the cities, which the soldiers shed more blood to defend than they did for the counties, should be required to pay a fair proportion of this fund for the support of disation of this fund for the support of disa-bled Confederate veterans.

GEN. LEE'S BIRTHDAY

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR ITS CELEBRATION ON WEDNESDAY.

Broad-Street M. E. Church-Its Observance at the Soldiers' Home and by Lee Camp.

January the 19th, perhaps, stands closest to the heart of the Virginian. The birthday of General Robert E. Lee has been for the support of maimed and disabled Confederate soldiers, came up, and was, upon motion of Mr. Featherston, recommitted. Mr. Featherston is not opposed to any measure which will tend to relieve disabled Confederate soldiers, and, leaders, alming at the overthrow of Confederate soldiers, and a legal holiday since an act of the Legisfederate institutions, may, while temporarily in high places, keep up the false cry of "rebel" and "traitor"; but these irrepressible outbursts of popular sentiment, regarding no restraints on great occasions which cause Nature to speak, show clearly how this cry and charge are regarded and looked upon by the masses of the people everywhere.

Everywhere General Lee is honored, not only as a hero, but as a patriot, and in these popular manifestations of respect and veneration for the man who won all his glory in maintaining the cause of the sovereign right of local self-government by the people of the several States of this Continent, all friends of constitutional liberty should take fresh courage in all political conflicts, never to lower their standard of principles. The name of Lee is now beloved and respect ed throughout the world. Men of alparties and opinions unite in this sent ment, not only those who thought and fought with him, but those most violentopposed to his political views and

It is natural that his own people should love and honor him as their great lead-er and defender in a struggle of intense bitterness. Ninety-one years ago he was born, and twenty-seven years ago he died, and each year since he passed away seems to have brought him closer to the hearts of his people.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE CELE-BRATION

The celebration of General Lee's birth-day will begin with a special service to be held at Broad-Street Methodist church to-night, at which the veterans of Lee and Pickett camps and other Confederate organizations will be present. The occasion will derive a particular interest from the fact that Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, formerly of Lexington, but now of Richmond, who was a close, personal friend of the distinguished soldier, will preach upon "The Christian Character of General Lee." The celebration proper will, however, take place on Wednesday. general holiday, as far as possible, will
